IS TODAY SHOWING VISITING NEWSPAPER MEN OVER OLD HOME AT JACKSON.

(By Associated Press.)

It is now expected that Roosevelt arrives the ensuing evening will result in more than an exchange of felicitations. Mummings and several other leaders are expected to participate in the conferences. It is understood the phases of the campaign are discussed, especially plans for notification. From present indications the notification probably occur at the governor's home.

ISH INDOLENT, REFUSE TO GET SOCKS DAMP—SIMS

London, July 6.—"For men must be what Charles Kingsley is with a passing reference to the fact that there was 'little to earn and to keep.'"
The men of today want to leave the women and the women have left weeping and taken to go to the pictures instead.
Body in England apparently, except a few old-fashioned people to work today, he hours of 'a becoming fewer and fewer and shops are closing earlier and earlier and when the shops close the papers object to anybody else the articles in which they—'deals.
The motto of the present day seems to be 'The Least Possible Amount of Pay,' and trade unionism is the industrial output to that of the apprentice.
The keynote of production is to be of output.
It is not spirit that animates the Of that I have had practical I sat on the seashore and a wave rippled in at my feet as on the beach. Then another lit- tle rippled in. Then suddenly a flow bursting with energy rolled ahead of the others—and sat my socks.

LET'S MAKE THIS A CITY OF FLOWERS

The Pensacola Journal has the following to say which could so admirably be followed in Lakeland that we reprint it. The Journal says:
Let's make Pensacola, one of the finest cities on the southern coast, a city of flowers, make it known as one of the loveliest cities visited by Uncle Sam's ships.

This can easily be done if every Pensacolian will plant in his yard, vacant lot or in every bare, ugly spot some bright and easily grown flower. The hydrangea, whose great masses of blooms in the pastel shades, ornament many lawns, can be easily grown, and once started, takes care of itself. Plant the broken branches in the bare, unsightly spots around your home and within a few months' time find your small efforts rewarded by a mass of floral beauty. Some prefer to plant cuts in January, the time when roses are set, but experience has proved that the hydrangea is easily rooted at almost any time of the year. Cuttings planted now or in August, if in loosened, somewhat sandy soil and kept watered for several days, will readily take root. The hydrangea has the advantage of living from year to year and increasing in beauty while the growth is not dense enough to be undesirable. Then there are the smaller flowers, gay zinnias, petunias and nasturtiums which add beauty to the grounds with little labor expended.

Just a few minutes' time and a little thought by the women, children and men of Pensacola and our city next spring can be a veritable flower garden, the desolate looking and unsightly spots transformed by blooming flowers.
Let us try it and see, each one, right now. Exchange cuttings and seeds with your neighbors and if you know of flowers that can be easily planted and grown or any good way to root cuttings tell them about it—or send it to the newspaper.
Working together, let's make Pensacola a "City of Flowers" next spring.

LA. LEGISLATURE NOT TO TAKE ANY ACTION ON SUFFRAGE

(By Associated Press.)
Baton Rouge, July 8.—The lower house of the Louisiana legislature refused to suspend the rules in order to take another vote on the suffrage amendment, and expected to adjourn late today.

THE ECLIPSE OF BRYAN

A sentence in one of the numerous stories of the convention, coming over the wires, indicates that at least some of the old time leaders are losing their hold on party politics.

It was said that for the first time in twenty-four years a national democratic convention was proceeding without the guiding hand of W. J. Bryan. That was after his utter defeat in attempting to secure a plank endorsing the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law.

Apparently, Mr. Bryan, after that vote was taken, disappeared as a factor in the convention. What he did in order to defeat or select a candidate does not appear, and his disappearance gave rise to the reflection that this was the first time in almost a quarter of a century that there was a moment of time in a democratic convention that Mr. Bryan was not in full control.

That he has been a powerful, as well as a disturbing figure all these years, goes without saying, when the record of the years is scanned. Three times he led his party to disastrous defeat. Once he defeated a strong man for the presidency, after that candidate had almost reached the goal of two-thirds of the vote. He has espoused all the latter-day reforms and has made them almost religious issues, failing almost invariably in getting them endorsed by the party with which he has been connected prominently so long.

TO DECIDE FUTURE INTER-CHURCH MOVEMENT TODAY

(By Associated Press.)
New York, July 8.—The future of the inter-church world movement will be decided today by the general committee of the organization. Three plans are suggested: Winding up at once of the movement immediately, continuing operations for a brief period but on a different basis or re-organized along lines suggested by the denominations in the movement.

ENJOYING HOT WEATHER

When people "can't stand hot weather," it is generally because they dress too warmly, or eat too heavily, or stay in-doors too much. Often it is all three together.

Summer is, according to the general view, the finest season of the year. The rest of the year is spent largely in looking forward to it. And then, when it comes, stupid and perverse human nature spoils the priceless gift by failing to put itself in condition to take full advantage of it.

The hot-weather dodger has friendly, just as the timid swimmer has to learn that the water is friendly. But temperature, like water, imposes its own conditions.

It is strange that persons who dress properly for winter, by putting on warm clothing, often fail to adapt themselves to summer by the opposite process. The least clothing that decency permits is the best rule. And fortunately light, cool clothing costs less than heavy clothing.

It is of little use, though, to dress lightly if one eats as heavily in summer as in winter, or chooses the same kinds of food. Either the food should be less in quantity or less rich in quality. The body needs fuel just the same to provide energy for work and play, but needs less to keep the body warm. Ordinary common sense teaches a cutting down of the "heating" fats and sugars, and judged by this standard, voluminous consumers of ice cream and candy are not very sensible. The fuel value in the ice cream more than overcomes its temporary cooling effect. Much candy in summer is the limit of dietetic folly. Lean meat is all right. Milk, eggs

PINCHOT LEAVES TO CONFER WITH LA FOLLETTE

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, July 8.—Amos Pinchot, a member of the Committee of Forty-eight which meets here Saturday in national convention, left today for Madison, Wis., to confer with Senator LaFollette, who is mentioned as a candidate for the third party presidential nomination.

Uprising Started

Mexico City, July 8.—General Larga has started an uprising in San Luis Potosi, the state war office announces. He has only one hundred men and the movement is not considered important.

One of the remarkable features of his very remarkable career was the way in which he came back into view of the republic after the Jackson Day dinner of this year. At that dinner he boldly announced a program in opposition to the president and immediately he again became a national figure, remaining well before the people until now.

He went to the San Francisco convention with the announced purpose of framing to his liking the platform of the party and nominating a man of his kind to the presidency. He never was more than a receptive candidate before this convention. But he has met his Waterloo in the committees and on the floor of the convention and for the time being, at least, he disappears as a democratic factor in any large way.

But we need not expect that we have heard the last of Bryan. He will still be one of the most sought after lecturers before the American people and he will be a delegate to the next national democratic convention, and nobody can tell whether or not he will, in the phrase of the street, come back largely into politics.—Miami Herald.

VILLA MODIFIES PEACE TERMS

(By Associated Press.)
Mexico City, July 8.—Elias Torres who conferred on behalf of the provisional government with Villa regarding an armistice, announced that Villa had modified his peace terms and conciliation was likely.

Anyone who adapts his body to the season externally and internally, and then lives in the open as much as he can, taking part in wholesome outdoor sports instead of sitting in a dark corner of the porch fanning himself, may turn an otherwise oppressive season into one of keen enjoyment.—Pensacola News.

Sunday evening a 17-ton steamer went along the shore close in and pursuing such an erratic course that there was no surprise later in the evening when the report was received that it had gone aground at the inlet. The craft was the Anvira, sailing from Jacksonville to Key West (for a cargo, Capt. Charles Kaufman in command). The crew escaped, but the vessel was a total loss. It went aground just at sunset at the light house, and provided the Sunday evening motorists with a real thrill. The ship was under water completely by Monday.—Daytona News.

Winners in the recent sectional tryouts for the American Olympic team are now training earnestly for the arduous competition which confronts them in the Harvard Stadium on July 17 and one week after that date the successful Yankee athletes will sail from New York for Antwerp.

MANES HURLED HIGHLANDERS TO VICTORY

(By Gosh—For Smiley.)
The Highlanders, piloted by Boss Jimmie Manes in the dual capacity of manager and pitcher, defeated the Bradentown outfit yesterday afternoon by the score of three to nothing. Boss Jimmie, besides being a mighty sweet first sacker, sort of showed up some of his pitchers when he held the hard hitting Growers to a measly three bingles in nine full frames and one of these came in the ninth after two men were out. Just to show really how good a game Jimmie pitched, you are cited to the fact that only 29 men faced him, none were given bases on balls and only two Growers got as far as the keystone station and four whiffed the air. Palmer, who is leading the league in the number of bases stolen, gathered in three more yesterday to sort of clinch the honors for the first half of the season, anyway. Palmer stole second and third in one inning just to demonstrate how fast he is and if Hardy had not had his chest protector buckled on Chick might have made it a perfect day by swiping that. McLean, making his initial appearance before the home folks as an outfielder, looks like a real find. He is fast, covers a lot of ground and possesses an accurate throwing arm, has a good stance at the bat and takes a healthy wallop at the old apple. His timely wallop in the sixth scored Boss Jimmie. By the way, have you fans noticed how many runs Jimmie has been hitting in of late and how many times he has been left on the bricks? It seems that every time Jimmie gets on, the rest of the batting order are unable to connect with the pill and Jimmie dies.

This afternoon's bargain matinee is the last stand of the locals on the home lot during the first half, they leaving tomorrow for a double-header at Orlando and coming back through enroute to St. Petersburg, where they close the season with a double header Saturday.

Let everybody lay aside the old hammers and get on the boosters' wagon during the second half. The boys are out for the rag and will need all the encouragement that you can give them. Stick to them. They are worth it. Show them that you are, by taking in all home games.

How about it? Are you with them?

KILLS SELF WHEN WIFE DIES; ARE BURIED TOGETHER

Boston, July 6.—Edward R. Freeman, and his wife on whose deathbed he committed suicide, rest side by side in Forest Hills cemetery.

Freeman's love for his wife was so great that when he realized that she was dying his grief overcame him and he killed himself that he might accompany her in death rather than survive her living.

But before Freeman's body reached the grave which for him symbolized union after death, society's stern laws against self-destruction exacted their toll for convention.

The bodies of Freeman and his wife started from their Roslindale home in the one funeral procession. Freeman's church already had given its religious consolation.

The double funeral procession proceeded to the Sacred Heart church in Roslindale. There a mass of requiem was said for the soul of Mrs. Freeman.

Whether by design or chance Mrs. Freeman's body was not taken into the church as is the custom. It remained outside in the hearse with her husband's nearby in another hearse, so if in dumb tribute to the love of the husband who preferred the wife to life.

SOME TIMELY SUGGESTIONS

If we would grow corn and raise hogs, economize and cease to try to imitate others, hard times would soon be only a memory in this country. A very small per cent of the boys stop to think of anything but what they call a good time. And it is surprising when they see so many old indigent men. You may depend upon it, they acted just as you are acting now. Every young man if he is normal should look forward to a home and family. And the girl who keeps company with young fellows who save nothing takes a risk for which she can find no justifying recompense. We have, we are pleased to say, a few young men in our city who are giving splendid promise; and if we mistake not are certain of successful matters. They are surely the ones we would employ if we needed help. We never fear to trust the boy who has a bank account. One who can provide for himself will never have any need to be dishonest.—Fort Lauderdale Sentinel.
